

Inspiration

The following excerpt is “We Knew Mary Baker Eddy, Expanded Edition, Vol.1” from Daisette D. S. McKenzie’s reminiscence. (pg. 254)

The role of Reading Rooms

While every Christian Scientist has the privilege of distributing these sacred writings, the opportunity of doing so in the appointed order belongs especially to our Reading Rooms and our Distribution Committees. Mrs. Eddy once spoke of “home” as “your calm, sacred retreat.” We may think of our Reading Rooms, too, as a spiritual home and sacred retreat for church members as well as for inquirers. In them is spread a banquet of sustaining food for the seeker after healing of mind and body. The doubting, the distressed, the bewildered, the weary, may find in the shelter of the Reading Room the quiet and peace in which to ponder and pray, and to gain direction from the intimate Love which is ever seeking to find that which is lost, to heal that which is broken, and to comfort “as one whom his mother comforteth” (Isaiah 66:13). Our Leader has provided in the Manual that no reading be done in a Reading Room except that of her writings, the Bible, and our authorized publications, and that secular matters not be discussed, that this atmosphere of calm and holy meditation may be always found there. May our church members realize more fully the purpose of the Reading Rooms and avail themselves more often of the tender care shown in providing them.

The following is a poem published in the February 2020 issue of The Christian Science Journal.

The Christian Science Reading Room Librarian

The librarian’s promise
Is to bear witness
To Love’s goodness:
To see

The dew of inspiration
Rests on the leaves of God’s word—
Open books ready to wrap
The mourner in comfort.

The librarian's promise
Is to give gratitude
For Mind's infinitude:
To know

In this active quiet—
Expectant stillness—
A thousand angels
Are waiting to bless.

—Robert Whitney
