

Inspiration

The following excerpt is from “The importance of the Reading Room” by Richard Bergenheim (The Christian Science Journal, November 1994):

Have you ever considered the fact that a Christian Science Reading Room exists to alert the community that human experience does not exist in a realm separate from God's government? A Reading Room can be thought of as the leaven of Truth and Love at work, permeating the neighborhood with a sense of Christ's new appearing, bringing healing and order to every aspect of human life. (Of course, it isn't the Reading Room that does this, but the prayer of those manning it and supporting it!) Christ, Truth, reveals that the human and the divine actually coincide. Jesus and later his disciples began their ministry by preaching “. . . the kingdom of God is at hand.” The Reading Room is a place where this evangelical work continues within the world today.

The belief that there is a disconnection between human experience and the Divine can result in much effort to establish a connection that already exists. Conscious being, like a pool produced by a spring, is the product of Soul, Spirit. The union between Soul and man is permanent and unalterable. The true nature and character of man are defined by Soul, God, who sustains man's existence. Consider the spring and the pool. If the spring stopped, the pool inevitably would go dry. The immortal activity of Soul prevents man from going dry. Whenever we look back at the source and cause of our being, we see the glory, power, perfection, majesty, and goodness of God, and then we realize, as Jesus revealed, that all this—the kingdom of God—constitutes the actual substance of our lives, even in what we call human experience.

Annual Meeting 2021

You're warmly invited to join Annual Meeting 2021 online through a live video webcast on Monday, June 7, at 1:00 p.m. eastern time.

The message, “Grace to go forward,” from our beloved Christian Science Hymnal (No. 278) inspired the theme we're exploring this year.

Officers of The Mother Church will share their reports, as well as healing reports from the Field. We're grateful to share that live, simultaneous interpretation in French, German, Portuguese, and Spanish will be offered.

The tender presence of the Christ will unite us in one loving embrace, in our homes, churches, and communities.

A shipping update

Orders will now be shipped through Mail Innovations as the new default shipping method when calling or emailing us to place your order. We are making this change to streamline shipping rates across both our online shop platform and orders that come in via phone and email. Mail Innovations is a combination of UPS and USPS services – the package will begin its journey via UPS, but when it gets to your area, it will be delivered via USPS to you. (International orders will have their shipments delivered as/from UPS to customs and will be picked up/moved forward through their local post/mail from there).

Domestic Reading Rooms will see significant shipping cost savings and the $5.00 handling fee is no longer assessed. In addition, you may see your packages arrive a bit sooner than anticipated. International shipping rates remain unchanged.

If you have any challenges with this new shipping method, please be in touch at opendoors@csps.com.

DISPLAY AND PROMOTIONAL RESOURCES

From The Christian Science Monitor

A Monitor Webinar: How a teen confronts discrimination and inequality one book at a time.

<https://youtu.be/kyGHLxx1FZk>

In his early comments in the event, Monitor editor Mark Sappenfield, called it, "a master class in humanity." This event reveals how the good Samaritans of the world today take action. This person is quite impressive! She is very articulate about giving, loving, and not judging even when being a woman and a Muslim in Indian means she is often judged.

This recording could be is a great item with which to host a viewing and discussion group. You and your participants might find it very inspiring. Monitor subscribers receive invitations to join these events live.
