

Inspiration

From “Rebuilding our concept of church” by Ariana Herlinger in the September 2022 issue of The Christian Science Journal.

In our church work, it’s important to make sure we are not simply becoming focused on the logistics of “doing church,” but are proactive in metaphysically protecting the work that is going on, praying to see that the government of God is completely in control. Regardless of what our role is in church (attendee, Reader, Sunday School teacher, Reading Room volunteer, etc.), we have the opportunity to prayerfully support all of the activities of church. We are in this together, working side by side, praying not only for ourselves, but for our fellow workers. And no branch church or Christian Science society is alone in this endeavor. We have our global church community, which includes the twice-weekly services and the prayers in Christian Science churches being offered “for the congregations collectively and exclusively” (Mary Baker Eddy, Church Manual, p. 42). When we do this prayerful work—in or outside of church gatherings—we see that, in actuality, any claims that threaten to distract, confuse, or discourage us have no power, either to have an impact on us or to impede the efficacy of our work.
