

MOSES and the BURNING BUSH

One day, a Hebrew man named Moses was tending to his sheep on Mount Horeb.

Suddenly he saw a bush, lit up in flames!

He noticed that the bush did not burn up. To his surprise, he heard a voice calling his name repeatedly!

The voice that called out to Moses from the burning bush was God! When Moses realized that it was God, he was afraid to look, but he listened to what God said.

God told Moses that he had to lead
His people to freedom.
This was a big task!

Moses found it hard to trust God at first because he didn't think he was good enough to do what God said.

But when he said this to God, God assured Moses that he could do this task because God would be with him and would help him.

It turned out that trusting in God was a great idea! Moses freed his people from slavery with God's help.

You can read this story in the Bible in Exodus chapters 3 and 4.
